

GIVEN A MILITARY WELCOME.

Omaha's Salvationists Do Honor to La Marcechal Booth-Oliphorn.

HEAD OF THE FORCES IN FRANCE.

Elaborate Demonstration on Her Arrival, Followed by a General Cannonade at the Grand Opera House.

La Marcechal Booth-Oliphorn, who has charge of the forces of the Salvation army in France, arrived at the depot at 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon, over the Rock Island, on her first tour of the United States.

La Marcechal is a daughter of General William Booth, founder and commander-in-chief of the army in all parts of the world, and is accompanied on this trip by her brother, Ballington Booth, who has charge of all the forces in this country.

This visit is to be made the occasion of a grand demonstration. In addition to the members of the visiting party, there are present twenty-five staff officers from all parts of the country, but particularly from the states included in this division—Iowa, Dakota and Nebraska.

Several meetings are to be held during the stay of the visitors here. Two meetings will be held tomorrow, the first at the First Presbyterian church, which will be at the First Presbyterian church. The visitors will leave Monday morning.

Welcomed to Omaha.

The tourists were met at the depot by an enthusiastic crowd of soldiers and a band. Rev. Dr. Harsh's of the First Presbyterian church was there with his carriage and an escort composed of Mr. and Mrs. Ballington Booth and Marcechal Booth-Oliphorn. The carriage had a place at the head of the line, immediately behind the band, and was escorted by the band. Then came the band, the visiting delegates and the local branch of the army.

Every soldier, both male and female, wore a sash of ribbon across the breast bearing the inscription, "Welcome Marcechal," and the delegation from across the river carried a banner which announced to the world "Council Bluffs Welcomes Our Leaders."

The female soldiers wore a uniform of blue, white and blue star spangled blousing. The procession marched to the barracks on First street, where a brief and a military meeting was held by the rank and file, while the commanding officers were driven to Dr. Harsh's residence for lunch.

Made a Grand Parade.

A crowd of several hundred people, ladies, gentlemen and children, assembled at the Grand opera house last evening to greet the commander of the French Salvation army, and the delegation from across the river. The parade was held at the opera house, the hosts of La Marcechal, preceded by a band, paraded the principal thoroughfares. In this procession there were probably 100 soldiers in uniform, and a miniature horse, wrought from the last edition of the War Cry, the army paper, which was mounted on a carriage and carried by a soldier. Marching as a body guard to this unique structure were twenty young women, with tamborines, and arrayed in the colors of the Salvation army. There were officers in the ranks from every corps in the division, which represents Nebraska, Iowa and Missouri, and a band of music from Council Bluffs and the Sioux City, Council Bluffs and Omaha bands, the whole being under the command of Major Keppel of Des Moines.

When They Reached the Hall.

Marching into the hall at the Capitol avenue entrance, the soldiers and the band took seats on the stage, and after a stirring strain or two by the latter La Marcechal made her entrance amidst an outburst of cheers by the enthusiastic hosts.

Mrs. Savidge and Harsh occupied seats on the stage. Ballington Booth, the New York commander, a brother of the distinguished French commander, occupied the seat next to the speaker. After this he turned to the cluster of soldiers behind and said: "Every one on the platform who is dressed in uniform, say amen!" There was a robust response that well attested to the depth of the feeling animating the hearts of those present.

Then the army sang. From the mighty Republic of France We rejoice our marcechal to greet, Who will help us to our feet, And America with us to meet.

Then Ballington Booth, of all the theologians they believed in, sang the closing prayer, and calling for another verse of the hymn, the soldiers rose to their feet, and as they sang, kept time by a vigorous clapping of their hands.

Following this Rev. Delwiler offered up an earnest prayer. Then there was more singing, more prayer and clapping, until the hosts from the band and singing, quite remote from the common way of conducting religious meetings, but aside from the grotesqueness of the proceedings, the music was as impressive and effective. The enthusiasm of the soldiers was infectious, and before they were aware of it, the audience was mingling their voices, and the clapping and singing with the general thrilling uproar. Among the many novel innovations in the way of conducting religious services, the accompaniment to one of the hymns by a dozen musicians on stringed instruments, brass viol, violin, guitar and piano, was greeted by the most rapturous applause, and a verse after verse was called for.

About the Army's Work.

After the exercises Mrs. Perrot, daughter of Napoleon, a writer of French tracts, and private secretary of the marcechal, was introduced and delivered a stirring address, embodying much of her experience as a savior of the lives of the friends of the French capital. Mrs. Perrot is a comely young woman of probably 35, tall, slender and willowy, with brown hair, and a complexion of a decided Gallic cast. She was arrayed in a black gown, with the regulation bonnet, and a voluminous white shawl depending from her right shoulder. She spoke earnestly and interestingly.

Bullington Booth, who is a gentleman built on the slenderest of lines, and a free and a freedom of manner that is refreshing indeed, arose and told the congregation why he was glad to see her, and proceeded to detail in warm and forcible language the texts, purposes and work of the Salvation army. Then he announced that his dear sister, who was much fatigued by travel, would not make her principle address to-night, but would defer it until next Sunday night when she would speak in Dr. Harsh's church, adding that the congregation would have to be content with a brief talk on this occasion. Then he turned to his sister and said in a loud voice, "Welcome to the land of the free, and the land of the brave, and to her position by the stand at the front of the stage.

Grand Marshal of France.

In appearance La Marcechal looks enough like her private secretary to be her exact double, but much less than this appearance by the similarity of their attire. She has a most attractive face, ever classic in strength, and speaks with a deep emotion of tone, in a clear musical voice, that penetrates to the furthest recesses of the hall and is readily understood by all.

She began by saying she was sorry she would not be able to elaborate upon the subject so clear to her heart, but would be excused with a brief address until next Sunday night. Then she spoke of the difficulties of the work, most of which are the blessings of God, but however, already been overcome. Then she told how letting in the gospel light at France was the only way to save the land of the country. There is nothing remarkable in the inefficiency of the Frenchman; they make no pretense at being strong, and their indifference and hardness of heart. But there is hope, she went on, for all of them, as it was her work to make saints out of devils. She told of the difference in the things of this country and of France. What a source commodity is charity in the luxuriant homes of the French and what a gigantic task it was in gathering aid for the suffering and destitute. France is neither religious or moral, and does not pretend to be. They learn their lessons in the theaters and saloons, and from those who live to serve the devil, and never think of setting foot in a place of religious worship.

Hopes to Save France.

La Marcechal has fond hopes of the redemption of France.

Business Men Protest About Having the City's Future Mortgaged.

WILL COMPETE FOR THE CONVENTION.

Recent Resolutions Adopted on the Subject Do Not Represent the General Sentiment—Garden City Gossip.

CHICAGO BUREAU OF THE BEE. CHICAGO, Nov. 14. Chicago has decided to come down off her dignified perch, so to speak, and will mingle with the other competitors in the general hustle for the national convention, notwithstanding the resolutions adopted at the Grand Pacific yesterday. It is also said that the assumption by some of the Columbian exposition promoters that they were authorized to mortgage all Chicago's future business to other cities in order to obtain congressional votes for the location of the World's fair here will be rebuffed. It is probable that a meeting of prominent business men will be held at an early date to protest as to the utterance of yesterday's meeting and to put on record the fact that Chicago wants the political and all other big conventions to stay in Chicago.

The Chicago hotel men are particularly dissatisfied with the outcome of the meeting, and none of them hesitate to state their views on the matter, and some of the expressions were such that the whole ball reporter would call "full of ginger."

All of the general passenger agents of the Burlington system are holding their usual monthly family meeting at the office of General Passenger Agent Eustis today. Only routine matters are being considered, and being no question of pre-eminence importance existing at present to engage the attention of the agents.

A young woman named Bertha Lawrence, residing in this city, was the victim of an unprovoked assault by which she will lose one of her eyes. She was walking over a small dry goods store, and at the door was met by Sophia Schmitz, one of a notorious band of thieves. The Schmitz woman had a few moments before committed a small theft in the store and was hastening out to escape detection. Finding Miss Lawrence in her way, she commenced to use her fists and nails on that person's face, bruising her severely and scratching out one of her eyes. Her assailant was arrested.

A $200,000 mortgage was filed in Chicago yesterday. It was given by the Security Insurance Corporation of New Jersey to the Manhattan Trust company of New York and bears interest at 6 percent, payable in gold. The mortgage runs from November 1, 1891, to November 1, 1911. It covers the property in this city of the Boston Cordage company, the Standard Cordage company and other cordage manufacturers forming the Cordage trust. Attached to the mortgage was the lease by which the Boston property and that in other cities was transferred to the New Jersey concern. The mortgage is one of the largest outside those given by railroads in this city. It is second only to the Gas trust mortgage, which was for $100,000.

Testimony in the case of the Whiskey trust against the Illinois Bond and Live Stock Commissioners for the destruction of 125 head of cattle supposed to be afflicted with actinomycosis, brings to light that hundreds of cattle have been killed in Chicago, which were afflicted with lumpy jaw. Sometimes, when the disease was not apparent, eastern dealers would purchase the animals, and it went to the New York markets. When it was very noticeable it was sold on the streets of Chicago. William Wolfner, who handles thousands of cattle for the Whiskey trust, testified concerning the manner in which the live stock commissioners first discovered the disease, and that the cattle were under quarantine, but did not remove them from the pens where the other cattle were kept. Twenty of these cattle were killed for experimental purposes and eight were slaughtered out of mercy because they were so badly diseased. Some of the employees took sections of the meat from these six cattle home and ate it. This came to the notice of Dr. John Scott.

Big Cattle Shipment Promised. Manager Hancock received a dispatch from Folsom, N. M., yesterday morning saying that more than 100 cars of cattle would be shipped to the local market next week. Prior to this spring New Mexico ranchmen have been shipping all their marketing at Kansas City, but since the yard's company began to work in that territory it has managed to divert the bulk of the shipments to this market.

Opening a New Church. The new Christian church, Twenty-third and A street, will be opened tomorrow with imposing ceremonies. Addresses will be made by Rev. Roy, Robert L. Wheeler, First Presbyterian church, and Rev. Mr. Henderson, United Presbyterian church. Revival services will be continued until the week, conducted by prominent ministers.

Social Young People. The Young People's Social club held its regular weekly party in the club rooms on N street Thursday evening. Dancing was the principal feature and a pleasant evening passed in trying to forget the cares of the world. It is the intention of the club to give parties every Thursday evening and the prospects are bright for many delightful entertainments through the winter.

Wiley and Doty. A very pretty wedding took place yesterday afternoon at the residence of Rev. R. L. Wheeler. The contracting parties were Mr. Eugene Wiley and Miss Jessie Mae Doty of Denison, Ia. Rev. Mr. Wheeler performed the ceremony. They will be the guests of Mr. G. Marton and family.

Magie City Miniatures. J. D. Holmes of Plattsmouth visited the yards. T. B. Scott left yesterday for Lincoln on business. R. S. Clark of Cozard had business in the Magie City. R. C. Cooley from Weaver is seeing the sights in the city. A caravan from Genoa visited friends in this city yesterday. J. H. Van Dusen has returned from a business trip to Chicago.

C. J. Shoemaker and F. Witt of Syracuse are in Magie City. The Epworth league met last evening at the Methodist Episcopal church. C. A. Darling from Lyons is the guest of his brother-in-law, J. P. Cozard, at the residence of James Mead and family of Albright. Ed Woods from Berlin made the acquaintance of commission men at the yards. William W. Wells, after a visit with his son in this city, returned to Homer, Mich., yesterday.

At a meeting of the Letter Carriers association yesterday it was decided to give a ball on New Year's eve. Mrs. T. D. Todd and daughter Mary arrived this morning from Waterloo for a visit with the family of A. L. McDougall. Fifteen new buildings have been erected along Twenty-fourth street for business purposes within the past month. The funeral services of Mrs. Charles L. Porter will be held from the Presbyterian church tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock. The paving on Twenty-fourth street has not progressed so rapidly since the cold wave struck us. But if the weather moderates two weeks more will see one side of Twenty-fourth street paved from A to Q.

PERSONAL PARAGRAPHS. C. A. Alkison of Lincoln is at the Paston. L. C. Lloyd of Gothenburg is at the Millard. Mrs. H. C. Watkins of Lincoln is at the Millard. Hon. W. A. McKeighan of Red Cloud is at the Paston. Fred B. Smith of Nebraska City is a guest at the Murray. Dr. G. W. Johnston and wife of Fairmont are in this city. Mr. J. B. Riley, of the Sioux City Journal, was in the city yesterday. Hon. John C. Watson, Charles Hubner and Dr. R. Roy Ross of Nebraska City are at the Murray. Mr. William Reardon, advance representative of Frohman's New York Lyceum Theater company in "The Charity Ball," is in the city.

OMAHA AND THE CONVENTION.

Senator Paddock Denies Nebraska's Prospects for the Prize.

WHAT SUCH A RESULT WOULD SIGNIFY.

Substantial Evidence of the Growth of Republican Principles—Chicago's First Triumph in This Line Recalled.

WASHINGTON BUREAU OF THE BEE. 513 FOURTEENTH STREET, WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 13. Senator Paddock, who has been spending a few days in the city preparatory to the assembling of congress, will be here again to take part in the fight for the convention when the national republican committee meets November 23. When the committee meets together Omaha will be found represented by able and efficient men, he says, who will set forth her claims in a way calculated to convince the committee that Omaha is prepared to take proper care of the delegates and all visitors. Senator Paddock recalls the selection of Chicago in 1890 when the objections urged against that city were the same as which Chicagoans are now making. He says that it would be something more than mere sentiment to nominate the republican candidates at a point further west this year as the growth of the country. Its political importance would be very great, for the recognition of Omaha by selecting for the convention would stimulate the republicans of Nebraska and the surrounding corner of the West.

"What is the political situation in Nebraska?" "The recent elections in Nebraska was a republican victory but I do not believe that the result can be accepted as conclusively indicating what we may expect in 1892," said the senator. "It shows, however, that the direction is toward the old republican majorities, and I know that hundreds of republicans, who left the party and joined the alliance, have returned."

TRADING SCHEMES DISCOVERED. The treasury officials have discovered a very neat and effective smuggling scheme by which Canadian tailors have been enabled to do a large business nearly all over the United States and even as far west as Omaha. It appears that drummers for the Canadian houses visit the United States and take measurements and orders. When the clothing is made the package is given to a sleeping car porter running between Toronto and Montreal, and is carried to the States. The porter brings it across the line to some obscure place and there ships it to the customer. There was a heavy seizure of smuggled clothing in Troy, N. Y., a few weeks ago. One porter was arrested in Boston and warrants are out for others. The treasury people are keeping a sharp lookout and it is expected others will be captured. In the meantime the Montreal drummer is at present working in Wisconsin and Minnesota and is heard to have returned to Omaha.

OMAHA'S FEDERAL BUILDING. Supervising Architect Edbrooke will probably return from Chicago tomorrow and will resume his duties at the treasury department on Monday. His return will probably be followed by readvertising for proposals for the execution of the new Omaha postoffice and court house. The last bids did not include the removal of the incumbrances now on the site and the next proposals must include these items. The intention of the senator precedes the possibility of accomplishing any more than the excavating before next spring, but the supervising architect's office expects to have the contracts awarded in time to assure the prompt beginning of work as soon as the frost is out of the ground in 1892.

MISCELLANEOUS. Ex-Congressman Jerry Murphy is here, on his way home from Europe. Mr. Murphy will take a steamer for Havana and will then return to Washington with the intention of putting in the winter in lobbying for the Heppner canal project. He says he feels sure a big appropriation can be secured for it this year.

The postmaster general today appointed S. M. Patton as postmaster at Hancock, Kosciusko county, Ia., vice W. E. Jordan, resigned.

Don't let that cough continue. Stop it at once with Piso's cure for consumption. It never fails; 25 cents. All druggists.

He Has a Scheme. John Gilman of Idaho is at the Murray and he has a scheme with him. He is trying to get people in the western states interested in an advertising train of fifty car loads of products which he will exhibit through the east and terminate the trip at the World's fair. He will have products from fifteen or twenty states and exhibit the whole train as a regular feature of the World's fair.

Wegman plans New scale. New tuning device. Sold on installments. Hayden Bros.

Will Investigate Schools. The Real Estate Owners association has decided to investigate the expenditures of the Board of Education.

Mr. Paul Harbaugh began yesterday to copy the list of teachers and janitor's salaries. An itemized statement of the expenditures for repairs, fuel, etc., will also be secured and reported to the association.
